

Built originally in 1907 for the William Andersen Family, one of the early blacksmiths in the valley, this Victorian house dates back to the days when the Santa Ynez Valley was home to many varieties of wild game, and the vineyards that now produce some of the finest grapes and wines in the world, were just a dream. The original farmers in the valley settled their families on the fertile land that was later to become known as the western town of Santa Ynez. Although they found summers to be very hot and rain scarce, they toiled from sunup to sundown to produce some of the most wonderful fruits, herbs and vegetables. By redirecting water from the Santa Ynez river, where steelhead trout at one time made their way clear to the summit of San Marcos Pass, they were able to irrigate the land and to prosper when others could not! Today we are fortunate to have their luck and to enjoy the fresh herbs from our garden and the hand-picked produce from our local farmers so that we may prepare for you a delicious, home cooked meal. We hope you enjoy your stay and have a truly memorable time!
